SAINT JOHN FISHER AND SAINT THOMAS MORE

This Thursday, 22nd June, the Church honoured two courageous men who were martyred during the Reformation: John Fisher and Thomas More.

John Fisher was born in Yorkshire in 1465, the son of a draper. He was educated at Cambridge University, where he became a noteworthy scholar; he was elected a Fellow of Trinity College and ordained to the Priesthood in 1491. In 1502 he became chaplain to Lady Margaret Beaufort, mother of the future King Henry VIII, and with her help, he re-founded the University both financially and academically.

Fisher was consecrated Bishop of Rochester, England's smallest See, in 1504. As one of the King's most trusted bishops, he had no escape from declaring his mind regarding the validity of King Henry's marriage to Catherine of Aragon when the King wanted to have the marriage annulled. For this he was condemned and imprisoned in the Tower of London. Here not only was he deprived of food and clothing, but perhaps most cruelly of all, from the visit of any priest. In the final days of his life, Pope Paul III created him a cardinal. On 22nd June 1535, John Fisher was taken from the Tower of London to the scaffold on Tower Hill. Pardoning his executioners, he declared that he was dying for the Catholic Church.

Thomas More was born at Milk Street in London, just behind Saint Paul's Cathedral, in 1478. The son of a distinguished judge, he was apprenticed in the household of the Archbishop of Canterbury as a page. The Archbishop, seeing that Thomas had great potential, nominated him for a place at Oxford University - where he would spend only two years, and then return to London, at his father's insistence, to study law. He was called to the Bar in 1502.

Two years later, he married Jane Colt, and entered Parliament. Together they had four children: three girls and a boy. But tragedy struck when Jane died in their sixth year of marriage. More remarried thirty days after her funeral; his new wife, Alice Middleton, loved him and the four children, while Thomas in his turn was generous husband and father. He published a whole series of books, including his most famous book Utopia in 1516. Later, he would put his pen at the service of the Church, defending its teachings against Martin Luther.

More's work in Parliament attracted the attention of King Henry VIII, who appointed him Speaker of the House of Commons (the last Catholic Speaker until Michael Martin in 2000). In 1529, he became Lord Chancellor of England. His tenure, however, was short-lived, when he resigned four years later, because he could not back the King in his attempts to have his first marriage to the Spaniard, Catherine of Aragon, dissolved. Like Fisher, he refused to swear allegiance to the King as the Supreme Head of the Church in England. For this reason, he was arrested, and imprisoned in the Tower of London for fifteen months without trial. Nine days after Fisher's execution, he was tried and convicted of high treason: it took the jury only fifteen minutes to find More guilty. He was sentenced to be hanged, drawn and quartered (the usual punishment for traitors), but the King commuted his sentence to decapitation. He told the court that he could not go against his conscience and wished his judges that "we may merrily meet in heaven again." On the 6th of July 1532, as he was being led to the scaffold, he cried out to the crowd that he was dying "the King's good servant, but God's servant first."

In 2000, Pope Saint John Paul II declared More "the heavenly Patron of Statesmen and Politicians."

FATHER JIM MORRIS - GOLDEN JUBILEE MASS

Father Jim Morris, curate at Saint Bride's between 1974 and 1978, has requested that he celebrate a Mass to mark his Golden Jubilee of Ordination to the Priesthood, on the 5th July at 7pm, in Saint Bride's. If you remember Father Morris, please join him at the special celebration.

ALTERATIONS TO THE CHURCH

Over the past few months, the local undertakers have requested more space to manoeuvre coffins when coming down the small stairway between the confessionals into the aisle on the way to the central aisle. In fact, a pallbearer had a bad fall a few months ago narrowly missing banging his head on the bench. While we cannot make the stairway any bigger or remove the white pillar without affecting the integrity of the gallery, we can make the small aisle wider. The Parish Fabric Committee have given the go ahead to take away the last bench on either side of the Church in the large section of benches. These benches are to be moved to the back of the Church on the lefthand side facing the altar. This will mean the demolition of the small platform on which the cross presently sits. Hopefully this work will be carried out this coming week. Apologies for any inconvenience.

We thank all the children for their attendance and participation, and also to their parents and carers who brought them. We celebrate all the children who took part in the sacramental preparations and made their First Reconciliation, First Communion and Confirmation. We will be back again in September.
